.NET is an open source platform for developers from Microsoft who are engaged in the creation of various types of applications for different types of devices. .NET framework is quite widespread in the field of developing internal corporate software products, but it is still relatively rare in web development, like other software products of Microsoft Corporation. Therefore, finding developers for a web project can be quite difficult. In our review, we provide a list of top .NET Developers who specialize in the development of projects using .NET platform.
