Every day we hear about new budding startups. Nowadays startups are really fashionable and promising option to start a business from scratch without a solid base capital. Especially often, startups arise in the field of information technology, that is also not surprising. The rapid development of the Internet, including its mobile segment, creates demand. And where there is demand, there are new ideas, products, and, of course, opportunities.

Successful startups are made up of legends where founders that realized their idea literally wake up the next day as millionaires. And almost always, software developers are featured in these legends. The result is known to everyone – a huge number of people study programming inspired by the dream of their own project. And then – mass disappointments and financial losses of software startups.

We conducted a study of more than 500 companies that specialize in developing products for startups, and selected the most promising partners for creating your tech startup ideas into reality.
